DAM 8 GETS REPAIRS. A 150-ton lock gate at Dam 8 near Newell is pictured at the top being repaired on the concrete esplanade. The gate was hoisted from the south end of the lock by the huge crane, marking its first appearance above water since 1911 when the dam was constructed at a cost of some $2 million. A special steel beam, designed so that the gate would not sag in the lifting process, can be seen resting on top of the gate. Size of the gate, 120 feet long and 20 feet high, can be compared to workmen in the photo. In the lower picture, an engineer inspects one the gate's dollies on which the equipment rolls in and out of a recess when used for raising and lowering the water level in the lock. The mud-encrusted gate was lifted from the Ohio River Thursday and is expected to be hoisted back into its compartment over the weekend.

U. S. Army Engineers from Pittsburgh are completing repairs to this huge, 150-ton lock gate at Dam 8 near Newell that was hoisted from its operational site in the muddy Ohio River this week for long-needed maintenance.

The mud-encrusted gate — used for raising and lowering the water level in the lock — carried evidence of its 48 years beneath the river.

ONE OF two used in controlling the water level for shuttling river craft through the dam, the gate was lifted from the river by a towering crane for its first appearance above water since it was installed in 1911.

The air-controlled gate is being fitted with new water seals and springs and is receiving a general overhauling. Work began Thursday morning and the gate may be hoisted back into the river either Sunday afternoon or Monday.

THOUGH DAM 8 at Newell and Dam 9 near New Cumberland will be eliminated about 1961 upon completion of construction of the Stratton super-dam, repairs are being continued to the two older landmarks in order to keep them in working operation.

The giant crane, floating on a barge, lifted the gate from the south end of the locks at Dam 8 and moved it about 200 yards north to the esplanade where repairs could be made by welders and other craftsmen.

IN PREVIOUS years, when repairs were needed for either of the two lock gates, they were moved by air-control on wheels into the recess under the dam shelf that had been pumped free of water. There were no cranes powerful enough to hoist the gate from its resting place in previous years. Often, divers had to be used.

The work party consists of about 50 men with a fleet including the big derrick, a smaller, whirley-type derrick, work flats, the tug Charters and small boats. The party will move to Dam 9 after the Newell job is finished.

Harry Smith, a veteran of 31 years with the engineers, is lockmaster. Harry Springer of Newell is assistant lockmaster.

The television industry Friday amended its code of conduct to ban all rigged quiz shows, payola and deceptive advertising. The television board of the National Assn. of Broadcasters said it was doing so to clean its own house.

The FTC complaints named three manufacturers and six record distributors.

All but one of the record distributors were Philadelphia firms. In addition to Barsky, they were Chips Distributing Co., Inc., David Rosen, Inc., Universal Records Distributing Corp., and Sparks Music Distributors, Inc. The ninth firm was Main Line Cleveland Inc., Cleveland, Ohio.

FTC Charges 9 Companies In Payola To Disc Jockeys

WASHINGTON (AP)—The public has been fooled and competition has been suppressed by nine companies that slipped payola to disc jockeys, the Federal Trade Commission charges.

In return for payola, the FTC said Friday, the radio and TV disc jockeys gave the firms' recordings a good spin—sometimes playing the same records as often as six to ten times a day.

Because these payments were concealed, the FTC said, the public was deceived into thinking that the records involved actually were among the most popular ones.

A spokesman for the Edward S. Barsky Co., a Philadelphia record distributing firm, one of the nine named by the FTC, made this comment to a newsmen:

"Sure we paid disc jockeys. We met competition. Every company was involved in one way or another. We merely fought the battle to sell records, and that was to pay some of the bigger disc jockeys."

U.S. To Give Proposals In Steel Dispute

Union And Industry Negotiators Meet In Face-To-Face Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government mediators promised to offer some steel settlement proposals today at the first face-to-face meeting of industry and union negotiators held since Tuesday.

Director Joseph F. Finnegan of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said in advance "We'll have some suggestions." He did not spell them out, but said his team of mediators has been broaching peace plans to both sides right along anyway.

Finnegan explained that separate talks he has presided over daily since last Tuesday with the industry and then the Steelworkers Union have been exploratory and "routine mediation."

He said he has been trying to reconcile conflicting cost estimates with "the slide rule boys"—or the technicians on such matters as insurance and pensions.

There seemed to be little ground to be optimistic for a prompt settlement as called for Thursday night by President Eisenhower. The President said the public simply won't stand much longer for continued labor-management warfare in the steel industry.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell discussed the strike situation Friday. Neither indicated that any definite course of action was mapped.

Mitchell said he is hopeful the strike will be settled before expiration of the court-ordered cooling off period.

Renewal of the 116-day strike is threatened when the Taft-Hartley injunction expires on Jan. 26. R. Conrad Cooper, top industry negotiator, estimated that union terms are nearly double what the industry is willing to settle for. The union demands, said Cooper, U. S. Steel Corp.'s executive vice president, would touch off a new round of inflation.

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers president, said he would be on hand for today's industry-union session. But he hinted he probably will let subordinates represent the union at some future sessions that look routine.

In Capsule Due For Astronauts

Sam, The Space Monkey, Survives 55-Mile Ride Up

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Sam, the monkey who soared 55 miles above the earth in a space capsule, returned to dry land today aboard the destroyer Borie, which had plucked him from the ocean.

The monkey and his capsule were recovered from the Atlantic Ocean 200 miles off the Virginia coast some three hours after he had been lifted from Wallops Island on top a Little Joe booster rocket Friday.

Sam was encased in a Project Mercury capsule, the type in which an attempt will be made to send a man into a space orbit.

The monkey was met on his arrival here by Maj. Cloyd Green, an Air Force physician from the Aviation School of Medicine at Brooks Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex.

Green and an assistant carried Sam, still encased in a small cylindrical chamber and covered with a blanket, off the Borie. They put him in an Air Force station wagon and whisked him off to the laboratories of the National Aeronautics and Space Agency at Langley Air Force Base, Va.

Principal purpose of the project, as far as NASA was concerned, was to test at high altitude the escape system of the capsule. NASA, a spokesman said, merely permitted Sam to go along for the ride at the request of the School of Aviation Medicine.

His space capsule, the kind future space men will ride in their first attempts to orbit the earth, roared to a height of 19 miles.

There an escape rocket ignited, blasted loose from the main booster rocket and carried the capsule on up to a height of 55 miles.

Testing this escape mechanism, a key safety device for future astronauts, was the main purpose of Sam's journey. It worked perfectly.

For a few seconds the seven-pound monkey, in his form cushioned cradle, was traveling 3,600 miles an hour. The pressure and strain was enormous compared to sea level conditions.

Then Sam tumbled earthward in the capsule. At 20,000 feet a small parachute blossomed and steadied the vehicle. At 10,000 feet the main parachute mushroomed and lowered the capsule into the Atlantic 200 miles east of Wallops Island. It had taken just 13 minutes from takeoff.

A radio beacon and a dye marker guided a Navy destroyer, the Borie, to the spot where the capsule bobbed and tossed in eight foot waves. The capsule was hauled aboard in about two hours.

But Sam still was imprisoned, and the destroyer crew was reluctant to let him out for fear of damaging delicate instruments. Sam had a 40-hour supply of oxygen.

For a time the destroyer tried to transfer the one-ton capsule to a nearby Navy Landing Ship Dock, the Ft. Mandan, which had a veterinarian aboard. But the seas were running too high.

Finally, with the vet giving advice by radio and with further instructions from Wallops Island, the destroyer officers removed the monkey from the capsule. This was six hours after the launching.

"Alive and kicking," came the word from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which conducted the experiment.

Sam spent the night in the destroyer's sick bay, as it steamed toward Norfolk. For supper he got half an apple, half an orange and a cup of water. He ate and drank eagerly.

Head-On Auto Crash Causes Minor Injury

Pedestrians Escape Unhurt In 2 Other Accidents In City

Two drivers escaped with minor injuries this morning in a head-on collision on St. Clair Ave. which caused extensive damage to both cars, and two pedestrians apparently escaped injury after being knocked down by vehicles in separate mishaps Friday, police reported.

Samuel E. Broadbent, 59, of Park Way and Sue Ann Layne, 16, of Maple Dr., Calcutta, were treated at City Hospital in the accident this morning.

Broadbent suffered a laceration of the lip, a bruised forehead and chest and abrasions of the left elbow and ankle while Miss Layne received bruises on both knees, the hospital said.

The head-on crash occurred shortly after 8 a. m., 50 feet north of the intersection of St. Clair Ave. and Walnut St., officers said.

Broadbent told police he was headed south on St. Clair Ave. and saw the Layne car come around the curve. The rear end apparently slid, Broadbent said, causing the car to go out of control.

Miss Layne, who was cited, said she believed she struck an object on the street and then hit the Broadbent auto. The front ends of both cars were damaged, police said.

Mrs. Mary Ferlaine, 43, of 2113 Michigan Ave. was treated at the hospital yesterday afternoon after being struck by a truck while crossing Broadway at E. 5th St. shortly after noon yesterday.

Anthony Klubert, 43, of 213 Center St., driver of the truck owned by Bell Research, Inc., 157 Virginia Ave., Chester, told police

Official Count Lists 221 Dead In Dam Break

FREJUS, France (AP)—Five grim-faced government ministers today inspected the flood-stricken Reyran River Valley and stood silently at the cemetery where open graves await more victims of the Malpaset Dam disaster.

The helicopters bringing in the top-level investigators from Paris landed shortly after weary rescue workers began their third day of probing in silt and debris for those still missing.

Official figures list 221 dead and 80 to 90 missing.

The governmental delegation was hardly noticed by the stricken populace of Frejus and the Reyran Valley. Only district officials, newsmen—and a military honor guard—greeted the ministers as they landed.

Regional police headquarters said 300 buildings and 137 vehicles were destroyed or damaged when 49 million cubic meters of water burst through the 185-foot high dam and swept in minutes four miles to the Mediterranean Sea.

Rene Laurin, national assembly deputy for the Var district where the tragedy occurred, estimated damages to Frejus and the valley between this coastal town and the dam at $60,700,000.

Huge Backlog Of Legislation Waits Council

Wage, Salary Boosts And Bus Franchises Due Action Monday

Nine ordinances and resolutions, the largest accumulation of legislation to face Council in months, is scheduled for presentation at a meeting Monday night at 8.

In most cases, the legislation implements decisions already made by the councilmen. It includes:

Five ordinances raising the pay rates of all appointive workers, with larger boosts for department heads, and higher salaries for most of the officials — elect who will take office Jan. 1.

Two ordinances granting five-year franchises to bus companies already operating the East End and Wellsville lines.

Legislation that makes mere possession of a gambling device — including a numbers slip — sufficient proof for a conviction in Municipal Court with penalties ranging up to a $500 fine and a 6-month jail term.

A resolution to pay a $24 bill against the city for alleged damage to an auto that struck a street chuckhole.

The pay raise legislation will provide 5 per cent more for 140 rank-and-file city employees and $50-a-month boosts for 11 department heads. It boosts the mayor from $2,400 to $5,200, the treasurer from $1,000 to $1,320; the Council president from $612 to $1,200 and the seven councilmen from $600 to $900.

All the raises would take effect Jan. 1.

The bus line franchises are scheduled to be granted to two concerns that took over the East End and Wellsville runs in November after the former operator went out of business.

The East End franchise would be awarded to Donald W. Barnes and John R. Campbell, operators of Tri-City Transit Co., which also serves Chester and Newell. The operating right for the Wellsville run would go to John W. Young, whose Inter-City Transit Co. also serves the Grandview and Pleasant Heights lines, Calcutta and Glenmoor.

The strict anti-gambling ordinance is the only new legislation on which Council has not reached at least a tentative decision.

A request for the gambling legislation was made to Council Nov. (Turn to COUNCIL, Page 2)

Chiefs Talk On Coming Paris Parley

Eisenhower Pledges 'Better Life' For His Grandchildren

ROME (AP) — President Eisenhower discussed Western summit prospects today with Italy's Premier after pledging to strive for "a better life" for his grandchildren than he had himself.

Eisenhower, in a jovial mood despite Rome's continuing rain, met with Prime Minister Antonio Segni to review decisions expected at the Paris Western summit talks Dec. 19.

The conference with Segni, Eisenhower's second since arriving in Rome Friday, lasted nearly two hours at the Premier's office and ended just before lunch time.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen that Segni and Italian Foreign Minister Giuseppe Peila outlined their views on the forthcoming Paris meeting. He also reported that the Italians gave their views of European problems generally.

Answering questions, Hagerty said the Italian government did not request a role as an observer at the Paris meeting which is to bring together Eisenhower and the leaders of Britain, France and West Germany.

Earlier, the President had made his pledge to seek a better life for his grandchildren in a short talk at the U. S. Embassy.

Several hundred persons, mostly Italian government workers, cheered Eisenhower as he emerged and drove directly back to the Quirinal Palace, where he is staying during the 44-hour Rome visit.

The President reportedly assured the Italian leaders the United States intends to press ahead determinedly with a policy of building Europe's defenses against communism.

Standing before about 900 Italian and American employees of the U. S. Embassy here, Eisenhower made a solemn pledge to "try to interpret America to other people a little more emphatically, a little bit more accurately than has been done."

The President went to the embassy directly from laying a wreath at the tomb of Italy's unknown soldier.

This was the first round of activities on his second rain-whipped day in this Eternal City. From the embassy the President went to Quirinal Palace and started his talks with Segni and other Italian leaders.

Eisenhower seemed to exude confidence that he would achieve the goal he has set for himself on this 22,000-mile tour to three continents.

The persistent downpour which attended his arrival Friday continued but it appeared to have no effect on the President's high spirit.

He waved smilingly from the rolled-down window of his closed car to admiring Romans as he rode to and from the wreath-laying ceremony and beamed at shouts of "Viva Ike." The rain kept the crowd down to about 1,000 at the ceremony.

The President wore a light gray overcoat and gray hat as he walked up the 70 steps to the base of the tomb. He stood at attention while the guards placed the wreath in position.

From the tomb in Piazza Venezia the President drove to the U. S. Embassy to make his talk to employees.

Council

16 by Police Chief Americo Radeschi, backed up by Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper. Councilmen agreed to consider the legislation, but none indicated which way they might vote.

Under present ordinances, police must nab a numbers writer and his customer in the act of transferring slips and money before the gambling arrest will stand up in court, the chief told Council. The proposed ordinance makes possession of numbers slips or any gambling equipment prima facie evidence of a violation.

If a gambling defendant has a "knowingly in his possession or in his custody or under his control any gambling device . . ." it is prima facie evidence sufficient for a conviction, the ordinance says.

The law specifically exempts "playing cards, poker chips or dice which are kept in a bona fide residence or in the possession of a legitimate merchandiser for the purpose of sale or carried on the person and cribbage boards, chess or checker sets and the like."

The $24 claim is scheduled to be paid to C. B. Tipton, 1234 Sunnyside Ave., for damage to his auto Sept. 27 when it dropped into an open place in a street where the pavement had pulled away from the curb.

Traffic

he had halted for a traffic signal. Klubert said he looked both ways and then started out when he struck Mrs. Ferlino. The truck "couldn't have moved more than a foot," he told officers.

Three other mishaps were reported yesterday, police said.

A 1955 auto and a 1950 truck were damaged when struck by a third motorist who drove away without stopping, police were told.

Police said James E. Smith, 57, of 331 W. 6th St. and Gary L. Bowersock, 16, of Dewey Ave. Ext., driving the truck, were headed east on the Pennsylvania Ave. "Hill Rd." at 7:25 p. m.

The unidentified driver, headed west, went into a ditch and then crossed the highway and struck the left side of Smith auto. The car continued up the road, hit the rear fender of the truck and then continued, police were told.

A mishap at 12:05 p. m. yesterday on W. 4th St. involved a parked car owned by Mary Stanburner, 313 Jefferson St., Newell, and a sedan operated by Mildred McGregor of Broadview Circle, police said. The left fender of the Stanburner car was damaged but there was no damage to the 1958 auto of Miss McGregor, officers added.

A collision at 5:41 p. m. on Dresden Ave. involved a car operated by Alois P. Wells, 28, of Ravenswood, W. Va., and a backing taxi driven by Floyd R. Buxton of Pennsylvania Ave. Ext., police said.

Auto Crushed When Caught Between Trains

A Pittsburgh motorist escaped death Friday at 5:50 p. m. when his 1959 car was tossed and rolled between passing freight trains after it stalled on the Cook's Ferry railroad crossing in Industry Township. Police Chief E. J. Hineman reported.

Kenneth J. McGurk, 50, a representative of the International Association of Builders, was unhurt. The car stalled after he had crossed on the Shippingport Ferry. He saw one train coming, leaped out and ran.

It carried the car about 200 or 300 feet east and a second train, coming in the opposite direction, carried the car more than a quarter of a mile west, Hineman said. What was left of the car "wouldn't make good junk," the chief said.

City Autoist Hurt

When Car Rams House

A Harding Ave. man was injured when his car crashed into a house on Route 30 about 2 miles north of the city at 2 a. m. today.

The Lisbon State Highway Patrol said the car driven by Robert D. Adamson, 41, struck the unoccupied home owned by William Y. Orr, 921 Orchard Grove Ave. Adamson missed a curve, went left of center and then crossed back over the highway and off the right side. His car then hit the house which sets near the highway, officers said. Adamson was headed north.

Some $400 to $500 damage resulted to the home. Adamson was treated at City Hospital for lacerations of the scalp and chest contusions. Two passengers, Fred Garn of R. D. 2 and George C. Garn of Ft. Knox, Ky., were not injured.

Adamson was arrested for reckless operation.

'Alibi' Driver Draws 2 Fines

A Cleveland, who attempted to talk the State Highway Patrol out of issuing tickets for two violations early Friday, wasn't so communicative today when he faced Municipal Judge George L. Brokaw.

Frank R. Shray pleaded guilty to charges of driving without an operator's permit and using improper license plates after offering a rambling explanation.

Shray drew fines of $25 and costs each from Judge Brokaw and was returned to jail in lieu of payment.

When he was halted early yesterday by Patrolman M. R. Darrah, Shray claimed he was en route to attend his son's funeral in Cleveland but said he had lost his Ohio's permit which had been stamped for temporary use.

He said he purchased the 1951 Buick Friday in Pittsburgh but couldn't obtain the title until the car is paid for so he was using plates issued for a 1952 Chevrolet.

When he was reminded both stories could be checked, Shray admitted he was lying, the officer said, and admitted he last had a license four years ago in Pennsylvania.

Richard J. Livolsi, 523 Broadway, Wellsville, forfeited a $16 bond on a speeding charge filed by the patrol. He was cited Nov. 21 on Route 7, the patrol said.

Newell Man's Hearing Continued To Tuesday

A hearing scheduled Friday evening for Richard Lee Allison of 1st St., Newell, charged with driving while intoxicated, has been continued until Tuesday evening at the request of the defendant, Mayor Burton Ward of Chester said. Allison posted a $11.50 bond late Tuesday morning.

Wednesday after he was cited Tuesday night following a collision on Carolina Ave. and 3rd St. Mike Matil of Butler forfeited a $55.50 bond yesterday when he failed to appear on a charge of allowing his load to fall to the roadway. A piece of machinery fell from a flatbed trailer as Matil turned from Carolina Ave. onto Route 30 late Tuesday morning.

40 & 8 Backs Color Ban Of National Unit

Columbiana County Vulture of the 40 & 8 Society agreed Friday night to write to its national headquarters, commending officials for "standing pat in refusing to delete the word white from its constitution regarding membership restrictions."

The action came after the American Legion yesterday in Indianapolis cut its public ties with the fun-making 40 & 8 Society in a fight over racial membership restrictions.

National Legion Cmdr. Martin McKneally said from now on the 40 & 8 will be forbidden to use the American Legion name or its emblem in any connection with its activities.

McKneally sent word of his action to John Hobbie of Liberal, Kan., national 40 & 8 chief.

A spokesman for the Columbiana County unit said today that "we were expecting it for some time as the Legion at its national convention voted to accept a mandate of Hawaii demanding that the 40 & 8 delete the word 'white' from its constitution."

The Legion itself has no racial bars on membership. Both groups have been arguing for several years over a society rule limiting membership to only white persons.

However, the spokesman added, "the 40 & 8 will continue to take its membership from the American Legion."

No Third Chair Should Be Needed

On the eve of President Eisenhower's leaving, his secretary of labor, James P. Mitchell, was outlining his dream of labor peace to an audience of bankers in a Florida convention.

Mr. Eisenhower left behind him a wish that the steel strike might be settled while he was abroad. He thought it would reassure the rest of the world on the score of America's industrial strength.

Secretary Mitchell's wishing is on a larger scale. He wishes the steel strike would illustrate the necessity of improving the operation of the economy, generating a rising standard of living and developing new forms of communication upon which to base industrial peace.

Both the President and his labor secretary feel that the public interest in labor relations must be recognized. Mr. Eisenhower says it will be necessary to take action in the public's behalf if the steel strike is not settled before the Taft-Hartley injunction expires. Mr. Mitchell says the public should be represented in all industrial negotiations; that there should be a "third chair" at the bargaining table.

NO THIRD CHAIR needs to be added. The two chairs already there should represent the public.

Management and labor in the United States are not warring forces that do battle while the public looks on and takes sides. That is an Old World delusion—the same one that misled the befuddled Karl Marx and his disciples.

The New World is not like that. Whenever it is forced to be like that, it is reverting to something wholly out of place in the United States.

When Henry Ford "invented" mass consumption to go with mass production, there ceased to be an American proletariat whose only hope of rising above subsistence was to wage warfare against management.

At that instant, management became the servant, not the exploiter, of the American consumer. The labor unions that now hold the power to make the key decisions about American enterprise also are the servants for the consumer.

All that remains to be done is for the consumer to demand that his representatives do what they should do to protect his interests as a wage earner, as a stockholder and as a purchaser of industrial output.

Ideally, there should be no quibble about the number of chairs at the bargaining table. Secretary Mitchell, who does his dreaming against a background of practical experience, sums it up this way:

"Labor and management in this country have got to start talking to each other in a more meaningful way. They have to rid themselves of the old social and political divisions that no longer exist, for our economy is the bedrock of the Western world and its strength depends upon the good sense and the good will of the men who operate it. There are many alternatives to stalemate, but there is no alternative to losing the confidence and the trust of the world that is shaping around us."

IS IT A DREAM when the U.S. secretary of labor talks this way? Is it a dream when the President of the United States says labor and management must get together in the steel industry. Though they have been irreconcilably opposed since they began to negotiate last May?

If so, it is a dream that the United States can rise above the heritage of hate, oppression, revolution and terror which was bestowed on it by the Old World.

The industrial era that has materialized in the New World has no place for these things. They are not in harmony with America.

They are not in harmony with America's leadership of the free world.

Who Can Civilize The Savages?

This story could happen anywhere in this country. Three teen-age savages were throwing sticks at ducks in a park lagoon. An elderly man who made a practice of feeding the ducks on his morning walks in the park seized one of them and cursed him for hurting the ducks. The youth assaulted the older, who fell, striking his head on an abutment. Passing motorists saw the inert body of the old man and three teen-agers fleeing. They notified police, who picked up the trio.

This story, which happened in Chicago, has an especially grim footnote. The mother of one of the three teen-agers, when she saw her son, had to be restrained by a policeman. She said she wanted to kill her own child. Usually, the parents of the young savages running amuck in a civilization that doesn't know what to do with them, are merely despondent. They say dully they don't know where they failed when their children finally commit a serious assault. They are sad about their failure, not violent.

But no thoughtful person blames merely the parents when these things happen. It isn't that easy to find an explanation. The parents, themselves, never have been civilized in some instances. And in many others, the parents have died.

It is obvious that the fault is the absence of civilizing influence through one fault or another—sometimes the fault of the parents but not always. Whether young savages run amuck in Chicago, New York City, Detroit or a country community, something has not been done that needed to be done to civilize them. Civilization, itself, must take the responsibility for preserving itself.

There can be a hundred theories about the reason for not doing this, but there is one fact: The rate of juvenile crimes of violence in the United States is rising out of proportion to the adult crime rate.

Civilization is not protecting itself at a vital spot.

Purse-Snatchers

Stores crowded with Christmas shoppers make ideal operating bases for purse-snatchers.

A Beechwood woman paid the price for carelessness Thursday afternoon when she placed her purse on a counter while examining merchandise. She turned her back for an instant and the purse vanished along with $25.

This costly lesson should serve as a warning to others. During the hectic atmosphere that marks the scramble for Christmas presents, the purse-snatcher finds his or her job all the easier. If you don't want to experience the same fate as that which befell the woman from Beechwood, keep your mind and your hand on your purse while shopping.

The Once Over

U.S. failures in outer-space rockets makes some people think instrumentation may be manufactured by the same people who are responsible for automobile clocks. How come we can get an electric icebox, a girdle, a cigarette, a lipstick, a floor wax, a detergent or a toothpaste to any height required but can't get into the air a device on which survival of a nation might one day depend?

Americans can break records launching an ornamental telephone set, a new cereal, a weight-reducing pill, a hair tonic or an electric blanket but seems lost when it comes down to an all-important item with which the enemy is having little trouble.

We lead the world in turning out songs about the moon but are behind the parade in more important lunar exploits. We hit the bullseye with thermostat, electric dishwasher or safety razor but nobody can even say, "Close but no cigar," when we are shooting for planets.

No nation in history has taken more photographs of more things and people, front and rear, than Americans. Yet it's also ran in getting a snapshot of the backside of the moon. (It's pretty embarrassing. Is there a scientist-engineer in the house?)

"Chuck" Conerly got two automobiles as gifts in a recent testimonial. One for defense and one for offense.

PODUNK HAS BEEN USED by humorists for generations as the name for a mythical small town. But there is such a place, as certified by the world's largest Christmas tree now in the heart of Gotham. The giant spruce grew in Podunk, Mass.

This is a triumph for the small towns of the country, thousands of which have contributed to the greatness of the city. Altogether, now, small towners who made good in the metropolis:

In New York
The truth's a gleam:
Podunk, too,
Can make the team.

One of the saddest winter sights is a view of torn up mutuels-tickets blown by the breeze around a deserted horse track on closing day. American Motors proposes three for one stock split. Three small sports-type certificates for the slightly larger model?

The Power Of Faith

By Howard Brodie

Faith is woven into the tradition of the Christmas tree.

Some authorities believe that the tree originated in medieval German plays when a Tree of Paradise was used to symbolize the Garden of Eden. Many believe that St. Boniface, the English missionary to Germany in the Eighth Century, offered the pagans a young fir, adorned in tribute to the Christ child, after he felled the sacred oak to the thunder god, Thor. He converted many pagans. There have been accounts that Martin Luther introduced the candlelight tree, to symbolize the starry heavens. It is thought that German settlers in Pennsylvania brought the tree to America. Prince Albert made it fashionable in England, when he and Queen Victoria celebrated their first Christmas tree in Windsor Castle in 1841.

Today large trees add warmth to community spirit, church trees nestle gifts to the underprivileged beneath their branches, and home trees, surrounded with gifts, reflect the beauty of nature, the glory of light and the joy of giving.

Secret Talk Fails In Steel Strike

By Victor Riesel

PITTSBURGH There has been a secret meeting between the President of the United States and the president of the United Steelworkers. Ever since that heart-to-heart talk — on the afternoon of Wednesday, Nov. 11 — Mr. Eisenhower has been determined to go straight to the people with his plea for a lasting industrial peace on the home front. Strike leader Dave McDonald slipped unnoticed into the White House through a side door that Wednesday. Neither he or the President wanted any publicity. The visit was arranged so the union chief could tell the Chief Executive why the 500,000 men of steel would hit the bricks again next January. Of this there seems to be no doubt.

Victor Riesel

The Steel Union here has not touched more than a sou of the $5 to $6 million dollars raised by other unions for strike relief. The money is being stockpiled for use next year. If there is no strike, it will be returned to the contributors.

WHILE THE MILLIONS pile up in the new war chest, special posters hired by the union are measuring the sentiment of the steelworkers throughout the Midwest. An agency has been retained to learn the reaction of the men towards another strike after the "90" — as the Taft-Hartley injunction days are now called in some circles.

Dave McDonald and his counsel, Art Goldberg, apparently are certain that the men will reject the final company offer quite heavily. So they're prepared to strike.

At the end of the confidential talk in the White House the President said quite fervently, why don't you get together right now with the most influential men in the steel industry? McDonald said he would. A telephone call was made by an Eisenhower staffer to U.S. Steel Corp. leader, Roger Blough. The word from the executive suite was a quite willing, "Yes, certainly."

The Iron & Steel Institute industrial relations committee met privately in a midtown New York hotel that Friday. They discussed policy and what could be offered to the union.

THEN BLOUGH and McDonald met even more secretly in a Waldorf Towers suite. Blough outlined the package. The industry said it could total 38 cents an hour over three years.

They met until late Sunday, Nov. 15. Agreement was as much in the shadow as chilly Park Ave. below. The union rejected the offer — and not because of the great bugaboo, Section 2B, better known as the work rules thing. Suddenly the companies and the labor men were not far apart on that. Now it was money. In their private councils, the union chiefs objected to two counts:

They might have agreed to the offer in a one-year contract, but not for three years.

Secondly, though the cost would be substantial in total wages, the union statistic lancers believed that there would not be any real wage increase at all. Here's how they reckoned it: The companies offered 6 cents an hour more in 1960 and 1961. Then they said that if the cost of living went up more than 6 cents an hour, the industry would begin adding another 4 cents. To the industry this would take a dime an hour out of its payroll kitty.

BUT THE UNION MEN said their followers would gain nothing because the cost-of-living increase would just about equal that dime and there would not be an actual pay hike.

So they turned it down and flashed word to Labor Secretary Jim Mitchell. He told his boss — the President.

With Mitchell and Dick Nixon in constant touch with both sides, the President decided on his own to hit the troubled air. The announcement that he would couple the steel section to his train of thought on foreign policy came as a surprise to the union leaders and the industrialists.

Mr. Eisenhower, while getting intelligence reports from both sides via his aides, was also talking to Atty. Gen. William Rogers. One of the solutions considered for such crippling strikes was a tough one — the drafting of strikers and the seizure of the mills.

This could drive a sponsor right out of politics. But Mr. Eisenhower will be out of it in some seven months anyway.

My Rigged Roommate

By Truman Twill

My roommate, as lovely as they live, can be ferociously frank. She was being ferociously frank at folding-up time last night about the big, shining, glorious drive to get rid of TV rigging.

"The fools never know when to stop," she remarked crossly, smearing on some anti-wrinkle goop to fool the world into thinking she was 17 years under par. "They've yapped so much about concealing the truth they're giving the country a bad conscience."

My roommate rubbed the crimson smear off her lips with a towel. "Anyone over the age of discretion," she continued, "knows mankind is kept going by its illusions. Why should I feel furtive because I use tweezers to conceal the fact my eyebrows are misplaced mustaches? Or as far as that's concerned, why shouldn't a gal accentuate the almost invisible with eyebrow pencil if it makes her look better than she is?"

I murmured she did not need to shout; I was listening. "Ok then, so listen," she snapped. "What about the padding in the shoulders of your coat. Is there anything wrong with that? I'm glad men rig themselves. Life would be uglier if they didn't."

"Take this item of lingerie there on the chair. Did any of you sheltered baby babes ever see your Aunt Emma without one? Be thankful for the rigging, Ronnie."

"Or that gadget that gives you the giggles every time you see me grappling with it. There are little girls who don't need one, and I'll grant that acrobats can look trim without one. But let's not start any movement to face life without the girdle, Gridley. Rigging or no rigging, a girdle is de rigueur, if you know what I mean."

I said I did. My roommate rushed on.

vator shoes, pumps to improve the foot line, pep pills, veils on hats, powder and unguents.

She referred to padding and flouncing — also to be included in a master list of women's wiles. She mentioned the stuff women put in their eyes to make them glow in the dark, the pep pills they take when they feel pooped and tinkling laughter to cover up boredom when the boss man in the Organizational Hierarchy tells jokes.

"See what I mean?" she snarled. "On the one hand we are supposed to gag it up to make you lumps proud of us. On the other hand, it says here, we are supposed to join the Big Purty Movement and quit rigging the show."

"Where does it say that?" I inquired meekly.

"Nowhere," she grinned, "but I wanted to beat you to it."

False Political Issue

By David Lawrence

Birth Control Seen As No Campaign Subject

There's something incredible about the current effort of some groups to make birth control a political issue in America. If voters were to be asked to express their preference for a candidate on the basis of whether he is for or against birth control, it would cut through all blocs and parties, irrespective of religious or party affiliations. The issue wouldn't be whether a couple of people have the right to have as many children as they please but what right the government has to tell them how to conduct their family affairs. President Eisenhower has just said:

"I cannot imagine anything more emphatically a subject that is not a proper political or governmental activity or function or responsibility."

"This thing has, for very great denominations, a religious meaning, definite religious tenet in their own doctrine. I have no quarrel with them, as a matter of fact, this being largely the Catholic Church, they are one of the groups that I admire and respect, but this has nothing to do with governmental contact with other governments."

"We do not intend to interfere with any other, the internal affairs of any other government, and if they want to do something which admittedly—to do something about what is admittedly a very difficult question, and almost an explosive question, that is their business. And, if they want to go to someone for help, they should go, they will go unquestionably to professional groups, not to governments."

"This government has not and will not as long as I am here have a positive political doctrine in its program that has to do with this problem of birth control. That's not our business."

ANY CANDIDATE who said he favored governmental action to control the number of children Americans could have would find himself losing votes right and left. The mere assertion of such a policy by any candidate would insure his defeat.

But, it is argued, the question really relates to other countries, like India and China, where population is growing to astronomical proportions. It is really believed that any candidate for political office is going to win or lose votes on the issue of how many children the people of India should be permitted to have? To state the question is to reveal its absurdity.

While the problem of overpopulation is serious, it isn't going to be solved during the lifetime of anyone in American politics today.

Two weeks ago, Sir Darwin, grandson of the world-famous author of "Origin of Species" and himself an eminent scientist and specialist on population problems, made some startling statements in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report. The exchange ran as follows:

"Q. How widely would birth control have to be practiced?"

"A. To be any good, it's got to be worldwide. If you just have it in this country, what's the result? Most of the world in 50 years will be black. Or more likely yellow. . . . But you've got to have an educational system. You've got to teach a billion—at least a billion—grown-up people how to use it. Well, how many men can a man educate? A thousand, something of that kind. You've got to have over a million teachers just to show people how to use this. You can't get that going in 50 years. So it's out."

"Q. Do you mean that it would take a billion people practicing birth control to stabilize the world population?"

"A. You've got to arrange it so that everybody doesn't have, on the average, more than 2.7—I think it is—children. . . ."

"Q. Are any nations facing up to the problem of overcrowding and doing anything about it?"

"A. Japan is one of the most conscious countries about it. They've succeeded in overcoming some parts of the problem by legalizing abortion, and, for the last few years—I'm not quite up to date on this—they had a million abortions a year. . . ."

"Q. Is their population still increasing?"

"A. Their population is increasing still. They've cut the rate down. I think it's below a per cent increase now. . . ."

"Q. What effect do you think a nuclear war would have?"

"A. . . . What does it mean—100 million dead? One hundred million are replaced in three years. You've got to have a war like that every three years, you see. You must keep to arithmetic on this thing."

PROFESSOR JOSEPH J. Spengler, noted economist now at Duke University and widely recognized for his studies on the impact of population growth, predicted in the same issue of the magazine that by the year 2000, the United States would have about 300,000,000 people and a total of 600,000,000 in the subsequent 50 years.

He added his belief that the United States could feed such a population and employ them, though America would be "better off" with less population.

It's going to be awfully hard for political candidates to win votes by arguing that legalized abortion is desirable for Japan, or any other country, or that the population of India or China should be reduced by a certain figure, or that American parents should be allowed to have only a certain number of children.

It seems fantastic that anything so abstract or nebulous as the world population 50 years hence should actually be considered as a likely "political issue" for the 1960 presidential campaign in America.

The Defeat Of Taft

By Raymond Moley

The fine pattern of loyalty to friends and plain speaking which characterized Robert A. Taft shines through his memorandum, recently made public, concerning the factors which defeated him for the nomination in 1952.

His managers before and at the convention were in the most uncomfortable doghouse for a long time after the debacle.

Perhaps the memorandum comes too late to help them, for they have apparently outlived the incident. Its publication now cannot help Nixon as against Rockefeller, because the present situation of the vice president is wholly unlike that of Taft seven months before the convention.

Public interest in the document justifies those who were close to the scene in recording their impressions of the points raised by Taft. I was one of those, not only present at the convention but in Texas during the holding of the precinct conventions which the Taft memorandum calls "primaries."

IT SHOULD be said that I favored the nomination of Taft as best qualified and believed then and believe now that he could have been elected.

There is no doubt about the participation of a powerful and well-heeled Wall St. group in the Eisenhower cause, just as there had been such an influence in presidential politics previously, which exists today.

Such a power had considerable influence in certain respects but history shows that it has failed many times in the past.

I believe that its ineptitude in matters political and the resentment it engenders among those who oppose the money power in politics are a handicap to any candidate.

It failed in its opposition to McKinley in 1896, to TR in 1904, to Wilson in 1912, and, I am assured, to Hoover in 1928.

The interest of the press in Gen. Eisenhower, which Taft noted, followed a primary instinct in journalism. The Eisenhower cause was a new and fresh source of news.

He was a new face in the political scene and Taft had been a contender for the nomination twice before.

There was no "control" of the press except by that master of all publishers and editors, public curiosity.

THE FATAL MISTAKE in the Taft management was to insist upon a proportion of the Texas delegation which was not justified by the facts. I had been present at some of the precinct conventions, at which Eisenhower sentiment prevailed.

Those former Democrats who voted were actually converts to the Republican party and were legally entitled to be there.

To insist upon such a large block of the Texas votes in the convention permitted the opposition to raise the same moral issue which was exploited by TR in 1912. "Thou shalt not steal." And to permit the judgment to go to the convention floor was mistake which determined the ultimate result. I wrote that at the time and still believe it.

In a more fundamental sense, the publication of the story of that convention serves a purpose. It highlights the weakness, duplicity, and double-crossing that still pervades political conventions.

If there were a moral case against Taft, the same might just as well apply to the Eisenhower managers.

The ordinary snail is the slowest moving creature in the world as it requires about three weeks to cover one mile.

Canned Music To Be Fought By Musicians

Robert Hall, president of Local 172 of the American Federation of Musicians, today said he has been requested by officials of the nationwide union to aid in a national boycott against sponsors and producers of television shows which use foreign and domestic made "canned music" to the exclusion of American musicians.

Hall reported Herman Kenin, president of the national union, has labeled the practice "unfair." Kenin's letter states, "The growing practice of 'dubbing' music made abroad at cut rates for the use on so-called American-made shows to sell American-made products to the American public compels us to call this un-American practice to the attention of the sponsors and the viewing public."

Hall said the local musicians plan to support the national union's opposition to the practice.

Schedules Announced

Post Office Will Lengthen Hours For Christmas Rush

Girding for the annual Christmas mail rush which already has produced an estimated 10,000 cards and parcels, Postmaster Samuel W. Brown today announced the schedule for the downtown and Station A offices.

Both the main office and Station A will remain open until 5 p.m. on Wednesday, next Saturday, Dec. 16 and Dec. 19, Brown said.

No window service will be available at either office on Sunday, Dec. 13, but the following Sunday, Dec. 20, one stamp window will be open from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the downtown office. Station A will be closed as usual.

On Wednesday, Dec. 23, the postmaster said Station A will close at noon as is usual on Wednesdays. The money order and registry windows at the downtown office also will be closed but the general delivery window will be open and one stamp window may have to be kept open, he continued.

Mrs. William Savors of Calcutta visited Thursday evening with Mrs. Ruth Cope.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Baker of

On the day following Christmas, both Station A and the main office will be open in the forenoon, closing at noon.

The estimated 10,000 mailings so far are the advance of a flood expected to see some 800,000 pieces handled at the local office, Brown said.

He again cautioned residents to see that Christmas gifts are packed and wrapped securely and suggested an extra address label be placed inside the package.

In addressing both cards and packages, avoid abbreviations in names of streets and states. Specify whether the street address is a street, avenue, parkway or drive to facilitate handling and avoid abbreviating state names. You might write "Miss." and leave a bewildered clerk try to figure out whether you mean Mississippi or Missouri. "Mo." is the abbreviation for Missouri.

Washingtonville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Sherman.

Midland Slips By Ambridge, 53-44, For Second Straight Lake's 17 Sparks Beavers Local Five Wins Foul-Packed Tilt Leopards' Attack

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Midland High School's talented Leopards stumbled through their second exhibition test, but managed to come out on top with a 53-44 victory over Ambridge Friday night.

The Leopards looked somewhat sluggish last night compared to the red-hot performance in their opening victory over Wellsville earlier this week.

Some 1,000 fans packed the Ambridge gymnasium for the game.

AMBRIDGE, winner of its lone start this season over Burgettstown, kept the battle close and tense for better than three quarters before Midland pulled out to a substantial lead midway through the final period.

Big Movie Smith, Midland's 6-foot-4 center, was hampered by fouls, committing three in the first half, and sat out part of the game.

When Smith was in the contest he didn't play up to expectations, but Gene Lake picked up the slack and paced the Leopards with a 17-point performance.

Lake was practically the whole show in the third quarter when he scored 11 of his 17 points to keep the Leopards in the game.

The 6-foot-3 Lake, cousin of the former Midland great Herb Lake, also turned in a fine job of rebounding.

Smith finished with 9 points, while Carl Anderson helped crack Ambridge's zone with eight markers all from the outside.

STEVE YETSO dropped in 7 points and Don Migliore and Barney Silverman, who turned in some fine relief work subbing for Smith, both tossed in 5.

Coach George Hamilton's squad, which fired an amazing 56 shooting percentage against Wellsville, dropped down to 34 per cent Friday night.

The Leopards took 58 cracks at the rim and connected on 20. Ambridge showed 31 percent, with 14 goals in 45 attempts.

Ray Brokos and Mike Shelehed were the big guns for Ambridge. They led a third-quarter rally for the Bridgers that brought them within one point of the Leopards before fizzling out.

Brokos led the way and shared scoring honors for the night with Lake by dropping in 17 points. Shelehed tallied 11, while Bob Kuhel hit the double figures with 10.

Midland got off to a slow start and was behind 3-0 in the first minute of play. The Leopards finally drew even at 4-4, marking the only tie of the game.

THE FIRST quarter ended with Midland on top 12-9, but Brokos and Kuhel hit for two quick buckets as the second quarter opened

Chester Varsity Defeated By Alumni Cagers, 46-41

The Chester Alumni returned to hand the 1959-60 varsity squad a 46-41 setback Friday night at the Chester gym.

The Alumni squad managed to hold to a slim edge throughout the fourth period.

A tight contest all the way, the Varsity held a 9-3 edge at the end of the first quarter, but the Alumni was on top 23-22 at halftime and held a 31-29 margin after three periods.

Encouraging for Coach Max Tuttle was the performance of Blaine Pinney, sophomore center

Huff-Brown Duel Seen In Giants-Browns Game

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sam Huff came into the National Football League in 1956, one year before Jimmy Brown. Sam was waiting for the big Cleveland fullback ever since.

Linebacker Huff will be at Yankee Stadium Sunday, watching and waiting for Brown to come storming into the New York Giants' line. And on this personal test between the league's leading ground gainer and its most respected middle linebacker rides the championship of the Eastern Conference.

The Giants are five-point favorites to defeat the Browns and gain the NFL championship round Dec. 27 against the Western winner.

The defending league champs, the Baltimore Colts, were at San Francisco Saturday in a showdown for first in the Western Conference. The Colts and 49ers both had 7-4 records with two games to play.

The Chicago Bears (6-4) can attain the season's longest winning streak by whipping visiting Pittsburgh (5-4) Sunday. But the reigning Steelers recently clipped the Giants' and Browns' five-game streaks and could do the Beaver Local faced a barrage of whistles at Augusta Friday night, but managed to overcome the fouls to nip Augusta, 63-62.

A total of 39 infractions were called on Beaver Local which lost four players via the foul route in a long, drawn out contest.

The victory marked the first for the Coach Jack Frontone's squad which lost a one-point decision to South Side earlier this week.

Augusta players shot 47 fouls and connected on 28, while Beaver Local took only 15 tries from the charity line and made 11.

Frontone explained that even though his team was backed up in a 2-1-2 zone defense the officials continually called fouls on the Beaver Local cagers.

Going into the final minute of the game the score was knotted at 59-59 when George Shaw and Bill Reed added the field goal each for a 63-59 edge before Augusta scored a fielder and foul to come within one point as the game ended.

Impressive in the Beavers initial win was Reed, a junior, who tallied 21 points on 9 field goals and three fouls.

Mike Durbin gained the double figures with 13 points while Dick Barnhart added 10 markers.

Cargill was the leading point maker for Augusta with 5 field goals and 16 charity tosses.

Fullmer Wins, Retains Title

LOGAN, Utah (AP)—Power-punching Gene Fuller, reigning solidly as king of the NBA middleweight class, contemplates stepping up a rung to challenge venerable lightweight champ Archie Moore.

Or possibly he might clear the 160-pound picture by fighting Sugar Ray Robinson, again if Robinson has any desire for such a bout.

Fullmer took solid possession of the NBA diadem and won the right to do some bargaining for future fights by scoring a unanimous decision over Spider Webb in 15 gruelling rounds at the Utah State University Fieldhouse Friday night.

This time noncollegian Fullmer—from West Jordan, Utah, and weighing 159½ pounds—proved the master of Webb, who fought on the Idaho State College team before turning pro in 1953. The Chicagoan Webb weighed 157½. Both are 28 years old.

Fullmer switched strategies frequently during the nationally televised fight as his manager, Marv Jensen, called code numbers from the corner. Fullmer fought out of an arms-crossing defense, led with a smashing right to the body or tried the more orthodox left-hand lead.

Webb made him look awkward frequently.

The cards of Referee Ken Shulsen and Judges Boyd Mattison and Del Markham all had the champion win ahead. Shulsen scored it 147-141, Mattison 150-132 and Markham 148-136. The Associated Press card showed 146-142.

Olin Dutra Leads Senior Golf Play

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Olin Dutra, one of the few golfers to win both the National Open and the PGA championship, is leading by one stroke in the $20,000 Senior Open Golf Tournament.

The Rialto, Calif., golfer played flawlessly for 17 holes Friday, carding a 34-34—68 to give him a 36-hole total of 139. Of the first 17, Dutra birdied five holes and hit par on the remainder. The 58-year-old golfer bogeyed the par 5 18th hole.

Defending champion Willie Goggin of San Jose, Calif., fired a 74 to fall one stroke behind Dutra at 140.

Bill Goldbeck of Mount Kisco, N.Y., and Smiley Quick of Los Angeles were tied for third at 142. Goldbeck fired a 68 and Quick 69. Harry Cooper of White Plains, N.Y., was the major casualty as the professionals were cut to 64 for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

The stable of William G. Helis Jr. led the thoroughbred horse owners in winnings at the 1959 Monmouth Park meeting in Oceanport, N. J., with $101,142.

Ashcroft Nets 30 Points For New School Record

Rich Ashcroft established a new school record and at the same time led the South Side to a spindling 58-57 victory over Northwestern Friday night at Hooks-town.

According to school records, Ashcroft bettered the old mark of 25 points held by Frank Golden.

The 5-foot-11 senior forward, who was a standout in football for the Rams, dropped in 12 field goals and collected six points at the foul line.

The victory marked the second straight for Coach Dave Nichol's squad and the second game in succession captured by the margin of one point. South Side nipped Beaver Local, 48-47, last Tuesday.

A see-saw battle all the way, South Side took a 15-13 edge at the end of the first quarter, but Northwestern was back on top, 26-25, at halftime.

The third period ended with South Side in front, 42-41, and the battle was on in the final eight minutes with the Rams managing a one-point edge.

Dan Frasier also was a big gun for the Rams with 18 points for the evening.

Kentucky, California And West Virginia Win

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baron Adolph Rupp heaved a sigh of relief today after his Kentucky Wildcats escaped with a narrow victory over UCLA on a weekend visit to the West Coast.

The Wildcats, expected to be one of college basketball's powers this season, nipped the spirited Bruins 68-66 Friday night on some clutch shooting by Sid Cohen.

In other games, California, the defending NCAA champion, and West Virginia, the team the Bears defeated 71-70 in the finals of the tournament, posted impressive victories.

California overpowered California's Santa Barbara branch 59-47 behind husky Bill McClintock and 6-10 Darrell Imhoff. The triumph was the Bears' 17th straight.

All-America Jerry West and Lee Patrone spearheaded West Virginia to an 89-76 decision over The Citadel. The success stretched the Mountaineers Southern Conference winning streak to 51 games.

Cohen, a back court general Brooklyn, took charge in the last 90 seconds to pull out the Kentucky squeaker. With the score

Red Knights Take 2 Preview Starts

Toronto High's Red Knights—scored two rather impressive victories in a six-team basketball preview Friday night at Memorial Auditorium before a crowd of 800.

The hustling Knights of Coach Paul Kalivoda emerged the lone preview team to sweep to victory in two quarters of action against different teams.

Four other quintets split while Newell went home from an abbreviated appearance as the only team that failed to win at least once.

Toronto polished off Wellsville, 12-7, as lanky center John Karavas led the Knights to victory. Karavas, a 6-4 senior, and Wadas each scored five points in the varsity battle.

Toronto's second line unit bumped Newell, 11-2, with Tim Wilson hitting five points.

East Liverpool High's Jayvees initiated preview action by whipping Newell, 14-5, as senior set-shot artist Phil Chan led the attack.

Coach Jim Harris' Potter varsity was edged at the foul line by Jefferson Union in the preview finale, 10-7. Field goals for the Potters were made by shifty guard Ken Cunningham, center Ray Bigelow and Chan, who left the bench in the final minute and immediately pumped in a long set shot.

The Potters made only one of seven foul attempts. Dickinson led the Jackets with five points in the varsity encounter.

Wellsville High's Tigers fell before Toronto's varsity, 12-7, in their first game, but nipped Steuben-

Rebels Open With Victory

FAIRFIELD—With three regulars hitting double figures, Fairfield-Waterford High's Rebels turned back North Lima here Friday night, 62-53, for an opening season victory.

Coach Bing Newton's squirt pulled away early in the fourth quarter to win handily. The Rebels led by only two points after three periods, 44-42.

Veterans Jim Olnhausen, Lee Chamberlain and Larry Peppel each collected double figures to pace the Fairfield-Waterford attack. Chamberlain, a senior center, scored 17. Olnhausen hit for 15 and Peppel for 10.

John James' 23 points led the North Lima five. Fairfield-Waterford also captured the reserve preliminary, 34-23, over North Lima's reserves.

Brilliant, Smithfield Stars Gain Ohio Class A Grid Team

Irondale High Lands Burgett On Honor List

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The top talent from Ohio's 291 smaller high schools today won spots on The Associated Press 1959 Class A all-Ohio grid team.

Picked by sports writers, officials and coaches, the squad is crammed with great runners, passers, blockers, pass catchers and tacklers. Probably any of the stars could make any Class AA team in the state—and most of them will go on to make their mark on the collegiate gridirons.

Keith Burgett, outstanding tackle on the Stanton Local eleven at Irondale, received honorable mention.

With Columbus Rosary's Jim Long at quarterback, the ball-toting corps is really something. Fullback Gary Crum of Cardington scored 213 points, halfback Bob Patin of Dennison St. Mary came up with 206, and halfback Bill Heinsman of Fostoria St. Wendelin counted 29 touchdowns. Long ran for two scores, passed for 15, and completed his second year at the Rosary helm without tasting defeat.

At the ends are Jim Presley of Brilliant, probably the state's finest pass-catcher in either class, and Dick Homlar of Maumee Valley. The rangy tackles are Gary Burton of Clark County Southeastern and Jim Dovich of Lowellville.

Henry Boyd of Smithfield, who intercepted five passes and recovered eight fumbles on defense, grabbed an offensive guard spot alongside Dick Davis of Fredericktown, normally a tackle. The center spot went to Bob German, the rugged six-footer from unbeaten Rutland.

Stu Nibeck of Fostoria St. Wendelin, a 183-pounder, was named the state's best Class A lineman. The defensive stalwart moved in at end on the first squad. The "best back" award was shared by Crum, offensive fullback, and Bernie Nelson of Sherm Van Meter, who settled for a linebacker berth on the first team.

Bulldogs Cop 51-50 Decision Over Canfield

EAST PALESTINE — The largest opening season crowd in several years, numbering about 1,000, packed East Palestine High's gymnasium Friday night and saw the home squad nip Canfield, 51-50.

Coach Don Hinton's Bulldogs built up a six-point lead with three minutes left in the game, but Canfield closed fast only to lose by one point to the clock.

The first three quarters were nip and tuck with East Palestine holding to a 37-36 lead heading into the final quarter. The six-point lead proved an adequate buffer against the tall Canfield, a 5-6.

Diminutive Willis Woods, a 5-6 senior and the lone letterman for East Palestine, led his team with six field goals and six free throws for 18 points. Robinson chipped in with 11.

Mike Sopkovich and Ron Baird each hit for 14 points for Canfield. Canfield's Jayvees won the preliminary, 43-23.

2 Share Top Spot In Golf Tourney

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Don Bispinoff never has led in a big golf tournament since he became pro last year, and after the first round of the Coral Gables $25,000 Open, he was bemoaning the fact that only three putts on the 18th green kept him from at least temporarily sharing first place.

After the second round Friday, he had achieved his goal. His two-round total of 138, four strokes under par, put him in a tie for the top position with Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah.

The plump and placid 24-year-old from Chattanooga, Tenn., was the scourge of Florida amateurs while living in Orlando. Four times he won the state title, once on this same 6,563-yard Biltmore course, so he was to be reckoned with as the 71 survivors of the first two rounds teed off today.

A brace of two-under-par 69s put him in his enviable position. Johnston and Finsterwald achieved their totals with a 68 and 70 each.

It promised to be a sizzling battle the final two rounds, with 17 players within a four-stroke bracket. Three of them were only one stroke behind the leaders.

They were Jim Ferree of Crystal River, Fla., Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, and Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla.

Cumberland Surprises Mingo In 55-47 Victory

New Cumberland's Blue Raiders, without a six-footer in the lineup, turned proverbial "giant killers" Friday night to thump tall Mingo, 55-47, for an opening season's victory at the Mingo gymnasium.

The Raiders, led by the rebounding and scoring of Fred Huff and Ron Haynes, rallied in the fourth quarter to gain the triumph after trailing at the end of three periods, 36-35.

Mingo, with a front court trio standing six-feet plus, was expected to add the Raiders to their list of victims in easy fashion.

Huff, a pint-sized guard, poured in 24 points on 11 field goals and a pair of fouls in sparking the Raiders. Big Haynes hit for 22 points on eight goals and six free throws. The one-two wallop of Huff and Haynes accounted for 46 points, only one point less than Coach Mike Rodak's Mingo squad could muster.

John Bellopatrick, 6-1 forward, scored 21 points to pace the losers. Center Gilbert, 6-3, scored three points and Wolford finished with nine.

Mingo walloped the New Cumberland reserves in the preliminary, 52-17.

Indians Nipped, 44-43, On Last Second Bucket

Salineville waged a strong battle with rival Springfield Friday night, but was defeated in its opening game, 44-43, on a game-winning shot in the final few seconds at the Springfield gymnasium.

A hook shot by Finn provided Springfield with its second straight victory of the 1959-60 season. Finn's shot split the cords with Salineville leading, 43-42.

A tight game the entire distance, Coach Dick Jones' Salineville five posted leads at halftime, 24-23, and 38-36 at the end of three periods. The first quarter ended in a 15-15 deadlock.

Dave Gearin, Salineville's only letterman, sparked the Indians with 14 points on six field goals and a pair of foul shots. Dick Kerr finished with eight on a field goal and six free throws.

Dillon led Springfield's scoring with 14 points.

The Flying Tigers also triumphed in the reserve preliminary, 41-21, over the Salineville Jayvees. Salineville makes its second start of the season by entertaining Jefferson Union tonight.

United Local Wins Opener Over Stanton

United Local, one of Ohio's top-ranked Class A clubs last season, began the march to another fine campaign by turning back winless Irondale, 48-32, Friday night at the United gymnasium near Hanover.

Both squads were off in field goal shooting, but the experienced Golden Eagles monopolized rebounding and foul conversions to open the season with a victory.

Coach Bob Penrod's Eagles, led by lone holdover veteran Lester Blanchard, led the entire distance in pinning the second straight defeat on Irondale.

Coach Les Douglas' Irons were held to 10 field goals and shot only 19 per cent. United hit 24 per cent from the field.

Blanchard, a star in United's tournament play in 1958, connected for 14 points to lead the Eagles attack. John Hanna added 10 and giant Jim Summer hit for nine.

Lanky Don Spires, 6-3 sophomore center, led Irondale with nine points on four goals and a foul, matched by Bill Chetock, 5-9 senior guard.

United's reserves won the preliminary, 32-22, over Irondale's reserves.

WHY RETIRE? by Walter Brennan

BAKE COOKIES FOR CHRISTMAS

Walter Brennan as TV's Grandpa McCoy.

A favorite "old" actor looks at the exciting years after 65 and says: Retire?— sure, but not from life!

by Walter Brennan

Star of "The Real McCoy's" (ABC Television Network, 8:30 P.M., Thurs., EST.)

I WAS 65 YEARS OLD in July, but I'm not planning to retire. Luckily, I'm in a business where nobody tells me I have to retire; but most Americans don't have that choice.

Some people are happy in retirement, and quite a few aren't. I'm convinced that those who are finding good living after 65 have learned that it's one thing to retire from a job, but something else to retire from life.

What gives me the right to talk like this? Well, I certainly qualify as a Senior Citizen—both as Walter Brennan and as Amos McCoy in "The Real McCoy's" on television. Then, too, I've been playing old men since I was 30, and I've learned a lot about them during those years.

One thing I've learned is that people have it within themselves to make the years after 65 productive and satisfying—even though they feel they've been forced out of a job at the peak of their abilities. It's essential, here, not to keep looking back with nostalgia or bitterness—or ahead with fear. The more positive older people can keep their outlook, the more positive and helpful will be the attitude of everybody else.

I know this isn't always easy—but it's certainly worth a try; and the rewards are great.

Here are six concrete ways to develop this positive attitude:

1. Look for things to be grateful for. It's impossible to find happiness or satisfaction when you're feeling sorry for yourself. If you spend the same time dwelling on things you can be thankful for, it can change your whole life. I remember a time when I thought our children weren't paying enough attention to us, and I brooded about it. Then one week I did a McCoy show built around this problem—and I realized how busy young people are in setting up a home and raising small children and getting out once in a while with people their own age. So I quit feeling sorry for myself and started appreciating the efforts the kids were making—and we all felt better.

2. Concentrate on giving, not getting. Older people have much to contribute to the world around them, and I don't mean money. I'm talking about a lifetime of experience and wisdom and skills. There's a market for these things—in your family, your community, your country—if you are willing to offer yourself with no strings attached.

3. Cultivate a sense of humor. I can't think of a single thing—except faith in God—that can do more for you than a lively sense of humor. This means being able to take an objective look at yourself—and trying not to be overly sensitive. Sometimes older people translate everything into terms of their own hurt feelings—usually when it was never intended that way at all.

I remember quite often seeing some of these young squirts in movies and television barge ahead without asking for advice or help I could give them. This used to bother me—but no more. These youngsters see me in an entirely different light than I see myself. This is natural and normal, and I quit being sensitive about it long ago.

4. Give your children their complete freedom. It does neither parents nor kids any good for the old folks to depend on their children long after they should have their freedom. I don't feel my children owe me anything. They provided my wife and me with many years of satisfaction when we were raising them. Now they're raising their own families—and they should have the freedom to enjoy them.

5. Don't hold grudges or resentments. Nothing can eat away at happiness like resentment. I know a lot of Hollywood old-timers who resent the money being made from their old films on television. I don't feel that way at all. I think the people who risked their money to make these movies in the first place have a right to the extra profits. I was well paid for my work in these films. True, I'm not turning down the extra royalties, since the pattern is to pay the performers as well as the producers; but I'm not one of those who demanded it.

6. Don't compromise your religious and moral principles. Problems appear much greater to older people at night, when the world seems to be closing in about them. I wake up frequently at night, but instead of experiencing fear and uncertainty, I use this time to talk with God. I can ponder every word, and I never fail to gain increased strength, inspiration, and understanding from these moments.

We don't need slogans about the "Golden Years" and "Senior Citizens" to make the years after 65 exciting and fulfilling. All we have to do is reverse a current trend of thinking that has us all mixed up. Let's stop conditioning ourselves for old age when we're young. Instead, let's switch the process and condition ourselves to youthful thinking at every age.

I'm convinced this is the answer to many of the problems we're having today with our older generation.

Sharing a joke brings a laugh to Walter Brennan, Academy Award-winning actor, and his wife Ruth.

Investment clubs have sparked an active interest in Wall St. The bustle of activity on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange is not so remote as it once seemed to many people.

A HEAVY WIND stripped a small Massachusetts church of its steeple two years ago. The congregation was too poor to rebuild, so a group of its members decided to contribute their own capital to a cooperative effort.

Paying only $10 each per month, they began to meet regularly to study the stock market and to invest in stocks. Any day now, they are confident, their church will have its new steeple, bought with dividends and profits on their investments, and they will have their money back.

For several years now, people have been getting together to make money via investment clubs. Outstanding about the mushrooming growth of investment clubs, now estimated at 15,000, is that most of them are making money. This is no lucky accident. A part of almost every club program is an earnest study of corporations in which investment is proposed, a course in the fundamentals of business economics, and the help of a skilled financial advisor.

Probably the outstanding success is the Mutual Investment Club of Detroit. In 1939, when its members were students at Western High School, they formed a club, got a financial advisor, and embarked on a program. Since then, they have paid in about $35,000. If they had chosen to sell out at the end of 1958, their assets would have totaled $123,000.

Younger clubs have done well on many famous stocks. The United Investment Club of South Bend, Ind., organized in 1954, is composed of housewives and mothers. Their best buy has been a drug manufacturer, Schering Corporation, which they bought at $27 per share. Their profit amounts to several hundred percent.

Red Arrow Associates of Rice Lake, Wis., is three years old and has 15 members who have contributed $4,200 for stocks that now are worth more than $6,000.

The Twenty-five Club of Oakland, Calif., was formed in 1955. Its profit tops 50 percent.

Not everyone, it must be noted, enters the Wall Street sweepstakes with complete dedication to solid principles. One jovial squad of bachelors, as their first step toward financial independence, chose to buy a race horse. When this noble steed put them in the red, they switched to another growth proposition, a young lady of some talent who aspired to movie queendom, and sent her to Hollywood. Unfortunately, she ran even more slowly than their thoroughbred, and they were soon reduced to the ignominy of investing in blue-chip stocks. Sadder and wiser today, they are now in the black.

One Detroit club called Midas failed for a strange reason: it was too smart. Its membership included such financial eggheads as a business professor, the comptroller of a department store, and a clutch of canny businessmen. So they studied stocks scientifically with graphs, charts, and curves. Finally, they decided to invest only in growth stocks, but they were so intellectual about it that they argued for hours about the definition of "growth." So it went at every meeting.

The result? "We got out of Parke Davis before it started to move," says George Moroson, a former member. "We sold Wrigley before it merged with ACF Industries and increased its value. We bought and sold like crazy, losing money on brokerage fees; while at the same time another club of nine girls we knew was making money hand over fist. One girl would see the '$64,000 Question,' like the show, and get her club to buy Revlon stock. We felt this wasn't scientific and waited, and Revlon went up."

Midas folded and Mr. Moroson got back $95 of the $120 he put into it, but the girls kept investing and winning.

Luck plays a part in such profits, but a much larger role is played by good judgment and training. This training comes to most clubs from the National Association of Investment Clubs, which was formed in 1951. Its advice:

1. Invest every month without fail.
2. Reinvest all dividends.
3. Buy growth companies.

George A. Nicholson, Jr., chairman of the NAIC Advisory Board and head of the investment-counseling department at Smith, Hague, and Co., Detroit, says: "We are confident that most members can accumulate $10,000 or more in securities through their club. Such accumulations can be useful in providing stability for the family, educational opportunities, and a happier retirement.

THREE YEARS AGO, the New York Stock Exchange explored the movement and discovered:

Investment clubs exist in every state, with Michigan, New York, and Ohio leading.

Stocks owned by clubs have a value of more than $50 million.

The average club has 15 members who invest $10 per month.

Church and religious groups have formed almost 100 clubs; educational institutions, more than 200; fraternal orders and social groups, 1,166; community and neighborhood groups, 1,661.

All-male clubs keep better purchase records. All-female clubs are better at buying good stocks at low prices.

"Men are gamblers out to make a quick buck," says New York investment counselor Spencer Grean. "But the women want that old washing machine."

Some Wall Streeters are afraid that a further decline in the market may stampede thousands of club members into dumping their stocks overnight. "Not at all probable," says Thomas O'Hara, chairman of the trustees of the NAIC. "We've lived through several slumps, and we find that members simply turn to a study of what companies in what industries are most likely to do best in a recession."

A Chicago broker complained, "These clubs invest only a couple hundred bucks a month, but they're constantly calling for reports on companies, advice, guest speakers, and other services. The commission isn't worth it."

On the other hand, a young broker, looking for new customers, said, "To a fellow like me, this is

"Investment clubs are effectively putting ownership within the reach of many, and they are doing it in a way that is practical and educational. By their size, soundness, and success, these clubs have earned a significant place in our arsenal of investment techniques—particularly for the apprentice investor."

—Keith Funston, President, New York Stock Exchange

Here is the inside story on investment clubs, which many families are finding the key to financial success—thereby sharing in the growth of American industry a real promotion gimmick. I've done all right getting individual accounts from the clubs I work with."

Club members agree that being an investor is wonderful. A grandmother reports: "For the first time in my life, I'm able to take care of myself financially without having to fool around with a lot of bankers."

An old pro at investing says, "I'm sharpening my wits in every meeting and learning about new opportunities I might have missed. Doesn't cost me a penny extra."

As for the New York Stock Exchange, Keith Funston, president, is a missionary for more of what he calls "people's capitalism," or the public's ownership of American industry. Though one out of every eight adult Americans now owns stocks, he wants more. If those added investors are in clubs, that's dandy with Mr. Funston. "Investment clubs, when organized with a sincere desire to learn—not to get rich quick—offer a way for people to learn investing firsthand," he says. "When a club succeeds in developing regular, informed investors, everyone benefits."

Echoing his sentiment is this statement of its educational goals by the NAIC:

1. To provide investment-club training for millions of Americans, for wise investment is the life blood of progressive capitalism.

2. To assist thousands of Americans to acquire $10,000 in stocks, for personal security engenders self-reliance.

3. To help self-reliant people of other nations learn investing, for private ownership of local and world-wide business is the path to higher living standards and lasting peace.

AS NEVER BEFORE, the time is ripe for the average man or woman to begin to learn the art of investing. Free assistance is available. So is expert financial advice.

The next step is to follow the pattern of experience of other successful organizations. This pathway is clearly outlined in a manual that may be obtained from the National Association of Investment Clubs, National Bank Building, Detroit, Mich., and also in a volume at your bookstore, "How to Organize and Run a Successful Investment Club" by Raymond Trigger.

Many new clubs choose to affiliate with the NAIC because of its useful services. First-year membership costs $10 for registration fee, plus $1 dues for each member. In return, the club receives at cost an accounting kit, corporation analysis data, and a monthly bulletin. Membership in NAIC also protects a club against loss, up to $25,000, due to dishonesty of a member.

Once a year, NAIC holds a national convention calculated to satisfy the hunger of even its most ardent investors for facts, figures, and fancies. Last year, special trains, buses, and chartered planes carried entire clubs to Chicago for two days of study and high jinks. There, they listened to sober warnings that whatever goes up comes down, and to technical discussions on how to make money on that fact of life.

By night, clubs sat around tables in friendly groups and played the investor's favorite game of "If-I'da . . ." "If I'da bought Texas Instrument, I'd be rich." "If I'da only held onto my Thiokol . . ."

Edmund W. Tabell of Walston and Company, Chicago, in delivering an address on "The Outlook for the Stock Market," provided two of the biggest "If-Ida's" of all time. He spoke of an imaginary investor with $10,000 who, if he bought "Standard Oil of New Jersey in June of 1949, held it until January, 1952, switched into General Electric, held it until August, 1954, bought Aluminum Company of America, sold it in May of 1956 to buy IBM, which he could have sold in June, 1957, and bought Parke Davis, his $10,000 investment would have reached a 1958 value of $496,000 after paying all taxes on previous transactions."

He then added this topper: "If the investor had put his $10,000 into Dana Corporation in June of 1949, held it until April, 1953, then switched into Outboard Marine until June, 1957, and then into Lorillard, his holdings would have a value of $1,500,000."

From $10,000 to $1,500,000 is quite a leap, and Tabell was making a valuable point, of course. "The only thing these fantastic figures prove," he said, "is that there are more profit opportunities in selecting the right individual issues than in attempting to catch the swings in the market."

No wonder investment clubbers come home from such meetings filled with determination to uncover the future Lorillards, Outboard Marines, and Danas. No wonder clubs show greater skill the longer they work together, and their profit swells in relation to their experience.

No wonder, indeed, that new clubs are springing up wherever people work and live and have $5 or so left at the month's end to invest in the dream called America.

Nothing brings the average wife into a conversation faster than seeing her husband start to open his mouth.

They were talking about the way women ramble on, and to prove his point the man said, "Why, take letter-writing. Never yet read one from a woman that was organized. Always had to throw in a P. S. to get to the point."

"Nonsense," the indignant woman replied. "I'll write you a letter and show you up!"

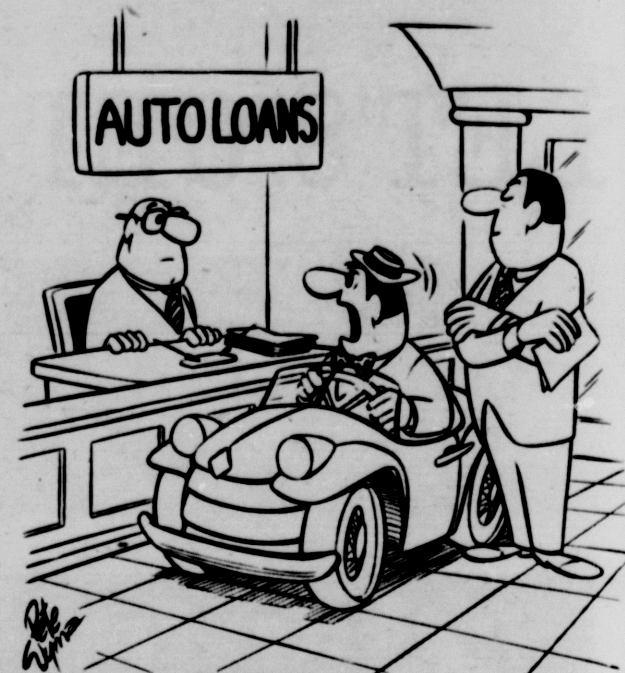

Next week the letter came as promised, straightforward and complete. And at the end was—"P. S. What did I tell you?"

THE MUSIC of Christmas is already filling the air, and soon we will celebrate the merriest yuletide in our history. An all-time high in musical magic has been issued to make this Christmas melodious, and manufacturers have new monaural and stereo units on hand to fit the decor of any home.

pops for the socks:

What better gift for the Christmas stocking of your favorite lad or lassie than a musical package, one like "Bouquet" by Percy Faith on Columbia, or "Ella Fitzgerald Swings Sweet Songs for Lovers" on Verve. Capitol has its best-selling "Kingston Trio at Large" and "No One Cares," sung so very well by Frank Sinatra.

Warner Brothers offers season's greetings through its TV stars who team for a disc of holiday carols titled "We Wish You a Merry Christmas"; Efrem Zimbalist, Jr., Edd Byrnes, Ty Hardin, Eddie Cole, Connie Stevens, and others sing sentimental favorites.

classical caroling:

Among the LPs of special interest to the classicists are Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" played by the Minneapolis Symphony, and the Detroit Symphony playing "Symphony No. 3" by Saint-Saens, both on Mercury. Columbia and RCA both have fine versions of Handel's "Messiah" available this season.

for the cool yule:

If there's a special "cat" on your shopping list, dig one of these as a possible platter present: Roulette's "Basie/Eckstine, Inc." or "Joe Williams Sings About You." Contemporary offers Benny Carter in "Swinging the Twenties," and from Warner Brothers you'll find "77 Sunset Strip" by Warren Barker a welcome addition.

santa in stereo:

For those who have the "new sound" equipment, there can be no better gift than a stereo album. Some you might choose from include: the sound track of "South Pacific" on RCA; "Gigi" via MGM's sound-track release; the perennial favorite, now in binaural and better than ever, Columbia's "My Fair Lady"; "Film Encores" by Mantovani on London; and the score from "The Music Man" on Capitol.

christmas for kids:

From Walt Disney's Disneyland Records to RCA's fine series of small-fry fare, there is an abundance of material available for the five-year-old-and-up fans on your list. Featured are Mickey Mouse and Company, Shirley Temple, and a host of others.

The Taste of Ashes

While millions listened, the voice that had brought him fame faltered and was silenced; what happened to Bill Stern that day at the Sugar Bowl was only the beginning of the depths of despair he had to reach before he could start the slow climb to personal victory

by BILL STERN

Last week Bill Stern told of the tragic car accident which led not only to the amputation of his left leg but, even worse, to his becoming a victim of narcotics. In this concluding installment, he tells of the humiliating depths he reached and of his long painful climb up the road to recovery and final victory over drugs. Both installments are excerpted from his autobiography, "The Taste of Ashes," written with Oscar Fraley. Copyright © 1959 by Oscar Fraley and Bill Stern. A SHATTERING psychological crisis arose in my life in 1952 when the top brass at NBC informed me that the important duties of sports director were going to be taken away from me and given to somebody else.

I was outraged at the decision. After all, I told myself with furious bitterness, I had organized the NBC sports department, and now that it was running smoothly they were casting me aside.

In retrospect I realize that I was a mental and physical wreck even then, but somehow, although I was constantly in the public eye, I managed to conceal my condition from the world.

I was rapidly approaching bottom, and my work was suffering correspondingly, although I stubbornly refused to admit it to myself. But now I was requiring several half-grain injections of morphine to satisfy my need, and I was visiting the doctor almost daily. This meant more sleeping pills at night, if I was to get any rest at all, followed by the rousing effects of Benzedrine in the morning.

The day finally came in June, 1952, when I found it impossible to continue. It was mid-afternoon and I was lying on a couch in my office in dull-eyed despair, racked by waves of chills and fever, when Tom Gallery, who had taken my place as sports director, came in to discuss some broadcasting plans with me.

His words seemed vague and distant, without sense or meaning, and my mind struggled to grasp what he was saying.

Finally Gallery stopped talking and stared down at me with a puzzled frown on his face. He inspected me silently for several minutes, then, though the words seemed to be coming from a great distance, I could detect the sympathy in his voice when he said, "Bill, why don't you go home?"

All I remember of the rest of that day was the startled look on Harriet's face when I was helped into my house, and my own jumbled thinking that now, at last, something would have to be done, some resolute decision taken.

I agreed to go to a private institution to take the cure. It was the first of two futile attempts to escape my private hell.

AT LONG LAST, on Jan. 2, 1956, came my personal Armageddon.

The situation at NBC had slowly become more painful, and I finally resigned to go with the American Broadcasting Company. I took along a sponsor's contract for a network sports show at $125,000 a year. My personal contract with ABC was for $55,000.

Professionally I was on top of the world when ABC sent me to New Orleans to televise the annual Sugar Bowl game. But it was to be a day of shame, disgrace, and utter humiliation.

The visit opened on an ominous note when I had difficulty locating a doctor who would give me an injection. Complaining of my pains and certainly looking ill, I talked him into giving me what actually was an overdose, the night before the game. Before going to bed, I left a call for 7 in the morning. Later that night I complicated matters by taking an overdose of sleeping pills.

From that moment on, everything is a bad dream. I recall awakening and summoning the doctor who had given the injection the previous night. At first, he refused to give me another but finally yielded to my pleas. When he had done his job and left, I passed out completely. The insistent summons of the telephone finally forced me awake, and I dressed with fumbling wooden fingers.

My trip to the stadium was a nightmare in bright sunshine. Billy Whitehouse, ABC sports editor, and Ray Scott, who was to work the game with me, waved in relief as I entered. It was only a matter of moments before I was on the air.

"Good afternoon, ladies and gentlemen. This is Bill Stern speaking from the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans where this afternoon we bring you the Sugar Bowl classic between..."

Between whom? My mind struggled to mesh into gear.

"...Pittsburgh and Georgia Tech. The captains are going out on the field, and here are the starting lineups."

Slowly fighting to pull myself together, I started again.

Bob who? Now where was his name? Wait, this was a note. Maybe they wanted me to read this. What did it say?

The words swam before my eyes, and I stared at the scrawl which Billy Whitehouse was holding for me to read. I couldn't believe what it said. I read it again, but the words didn't change. They still contained that short terse order: "Give it to Scott."

Woodenly I sat there through the kickoff, indignation mounting inside of me, succeeded quickly by rage. What right did they have to take me, Bill Stern, off the air? Then I realized the dreadful consequences which could follow.

Dejected and sick, I walked slowly from the stadium with Whitehouse, contemplating what I had done to my career. The silence between us was broken only once as we headed back to the hotel.

"I'm not sure what you've been doing, Bill," he said hesitantly, "but whatever it is, you'd better get hold of yourself."

WITHIN A WEEK after the catastrophe at New Orleans, I was taken to LeRoy Hospital, a private institution in New York City.

Three weeks later, they had done as much for me as they possibly could and I was released.

I was frightfully weak and run down, but I was off drugs. The rocks on which I was to founder, even yet, however, were the sleeping tablets. I was taking as many as 16 a night.

Through three more nerve-shattering weeks, I waged an ever-losing battle to stay away from drugs. After six gruesome weeks, I surreptitiously visited a doctor for "just one" shot. It was my first step back into the same devilish pit.

Harriet knew almost from the first. The haunted look returned to her eyes, which again were red from weeping. She pleaded with me, alternately threatening and begging, but to no avail.

I continued my daily broadcast, but gradually it became more and more impossible. The voice of which I had been so proud was broken and scratchy. My lips would form words but no sounds would come forth, my face contorting as I strove wretchedly to enunciate.

For the first time, complaints from stations poured in to ABC for "letting a drunk go on the air."

After this, the end wasn't long in coming. By early June, 1956, it no longer was a question of my work and my home. It was becoming a matter of life or death—and life appeared a certain loser.

I could no longer perform because my lips twitched uncontrollably, my mouth was fever-dry, and my throat felt as if I was swallowing razor blades. The words which were my livelihood simply wouldn't come any more.

One night, Harriet sat staring at me as I jerked nervously about the room in tigerish torment, then she suddenly burst into tears. Miserably helpless, I simply stood there until she cried herself out.

"Sit down, Bill, and listen to me," she said in a dead, lifeless tone. Her next words seemed to knock the breath out of me. "Bill, I can't—no, I won't—take this any longer."

We talked for hours, as we had so often in the past, but this time there was a difference. Harriet now remained coldly adamant.

Putting aside what remained of my pride, I called a doctor.

But not for drugs. I explained that I wanted the name of an institution which would take me and keep me until I was cured unquestionably, no matter how long it took.

We decided on the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn.

It was a beautiful day, that morning of June 16, 1956, when we started out for Hartford. Harriet drove in silence all the way. As she pulled to a stop in front of the buildings which were to be my prison, she said, "Well, Bill, we might as well go in."

A tall young man in a tweed suit came up to us. He held out his hand, level eyes regarding us appraisingly behind horn-rimmed glasses. "Mr. and Mrs. Stern? I am Dr. Gordon Edgren."

After Harriet left, Dr. Edgren talked casually for a while, then asked, "Do you have any medicine with you?"

I handed over the Demerol tablets to this big easygoing man who assured me I would be given all the sleeping medicine I needed that night and that someone would be with me constantly during the first few days.

"But our biggest problem," he warned, "is really the matter of sleeping medicine. I do not regard the drugs as being half as menacing as the sleeping pills you are taking. That is the crutch which has helped to lead you back to drugs."

The first few weeks were all that I had expected. But, painfully, gradually, the worst of the drug-withdrawal symptoms subsided. I was still taking as many as 16 sleeping tablets at night; but very slowly Dr. Edgren started to cut down, first to 12, then to 10.

For several days I received eight pills, but they didn't seem to have their previous effect. When they were brought to me the next time, I cut them into pieces.

Four of them were decoys, sugar-coated pills masked in the same outer covering as the sleeping tablets.

I flew into a rage. Did they think they were dealing with a child? I slyly determined to get even. During the daily becoming so wild that I was moved to the psychiatric ward.

Unable to quiet me, the doctors at Hartford Hospital called Dr. Edgren and asked that the Institute come and get me. Within the hour, four attendants entered my room to take me back. When one of them took my arm, I smashed a fist into his face; but I was forcibly restrained and removed.

When we arrived at the Institute, I was so violent that Dr. Edgren ordered an injection of Pentothal Sodium to knock me out.

My awakening was shattering.

I was in a tiny cell-like room in the disturbed ward, a locked unit for psychotics who are bent on self-destruction or are dangerous to others.

I screamed and raved at the attendants who tried to quiet me. I insisted that they send for Dr. Edgren.

When he arrived, I cursed him fluently. He listened quietly and said, "Bill, the time has come for you to face up to facts. As long as you are here, I am in control. From now on, you don't get a single bit of sleeping medicine."

Snatching up my artificial leg, I hurled it at him. It struck against the wall, scant inches from his head, and clattered to the floor. Dr. Edgren stooped and picked it up.

"I'll just take this with me until you need it again," was all he said. Then he left.

No sooner had he gone than I yelled for an attendant and demanded pencil and paper. I would show them. Who did they think they were, to keep Bill Stern locked up this way? I'd demand my release.

NEXT DAY Dr. Edgren returned, my letter in his hand. "Bill," he said, "you don't want to do this. If you leave now, you'll never get well."

I was imperious and curt. "I want out. That's all I want from you, and what happens to me is nobody's business but my own."

But it was.

Dr. Edgren called Harriet and advised commitment proceedings.

When I heard this, I went into another violent rage, soon replaced by terror. Would Harriet let me down?

When she came to the Institute, she asked Dr. Edgren one question. "If he is allowed to leave, will he go back on drugs?"

Dr. Edgren's reply consisted of one word, crisp, authoritative, and final: "Unquestionably."

That word settled the issue. Harriet agreed to have me committed.

I sank into complete despair. The Saturday before commitment was to become final, I waited behind the locked doors of the ward, unconscious of the other poor souls around me. One of the attendants turned on the television set. It was the opening football game of the season.

"This will be a good game, Mr. Stern," he said. "But I guess you've seen so many of them that it's hard for you to work up much interest." At that moment, something stirred in me. Not interested? I'd have given anything to be back as a part of that excitement, living a life I had never fully appreciated before.

Bitterly, hopelessly, I slumped back into the chair and cried.

It was then that Dr. Edgren, with some great intuitive sense, decided on a last effort to save me from myself.

"Bill," he said, "it isn't too late to stop these proceedings if you will just admit you need help and cooperate with me. But you must withdraw that letter and make up your mind to stay here peacefully, helping us get at the root of your troubles. No more lies, no more tantrums, no more medicine. It won't be easy, but it's the only way out."

I felt like a man unexpectedly pardoned from the gallows. For the first time, I knew I had found someone with a will stronger than my own, someone more determined that I was going to get well than I was.

With tears dimming my vision, I grasped his hand. "I'll withdraw the letter," I wept. "I swear I'll put myself in your hands, Doctor. Whatever you say, I promise you, that will be it."

It was at this moment God willed I should get well.

If I used millions of words, there is no explaining the joy of my homecoming on a cold blustery day in late December, 1956.

As Harriet drove up our winding driveway, it was the most beautiful sight I had ever seen. I simply sat there, taking in every detail.

Home again!

Two lazy and wonderful weeks slipped past and I felt complete, filled with a surging vitality. My convalescence was almost four months old by this time, and the urge was growing ever stronger to return to work.

It was twice as tough as I expected it to be. Old friends were pleasant but evasive. New faces were friendly but noncommittal. As one disappointing day led to another, there seemed to be no jobs for Bill Stern.

But I kept trying. In the meantime I found contentment in my blessings: Harriet's happiness, our children, our home, and my new-found health. These, I knew, I would not trade for all the fame in the world nor would I jeopardize them again.

ALMOST two months passed. Money was no immediate problem; I had earned great sums and saved conscientiously. Yet a seeming eternity of inactivity passed before I finally received a call in February from station WINS in New York.

They offered me a spot as a disc jockey from 7 to 10 in the morning. It was a start up the road back, and I was tremendously grateful for the opportunity to take this first step in the right direction.

This show, which we called "Contact," was patterned after Bill Cullen's highly successful "Pulse," an NBC program.

Then, on a memorable day in August, I received a phone call from Mike Roshkind, who was handling public relations for the Mutual Broadcasting System.

"Bill," he asked, "how would you like to do a sports show for Mutual?"

Mike's words were among the most beautiful I had ever heard because they meant my re-entry into the network field and into sports, which I had always preferred.

Stern has own program, is also sports director of Mutual Broadcasting System.

Details were worked out and in September, 1957, I was doing a nightly show for Mutual.

The following January will always be one of the most memorable months of my life. My old sponsor, Colgate, for whom I had worked 12 years putting on the fantastically successful "Sports Newsreel," proved its loyalty to me again when it sponsored me coast-to-coast, twice each morning, over the Mutual network.

Then, although I had been back on the air in sports for only three months, the nation's radio editors voted me the Radio-and-TV Daily award as the sportscaster of the year.

New encouragement was provided when TV-Radio Mirror informed me early this year that I had won its award as 1958's favorite radio sports announcer.

TO CAP IT ALL, there was this letter from Dr. Francis J. Braceland, psychiatrist-in-chief at the Institute of Living in Hartford.

"Dear Bill:

"The excellent reports I get about you from Dr. Edgren and the things I read about your accomplishments give me a great feeling of satisfaction. You have done an excellent job. You are to be sincerely congratulated, and I am so delighted to see you back in the swing of things.

"Although it is impossible to convey to each person who is here our feelings and hopes, nonetheless we are vitally interested in their welfare. Without this interest, the job here would be impossible.

"Please know, therefore, that by your accomplishments you help a great many people. You encourage those who are having trouble themselves and who have learned that you had difficulty and saw it through, and you also encourage the members of the staffs like ours who feel that the efforts this work requires are not in vain.

"With my own sincere personal congratulations and the congratulations and prayers and best wishes of every member of the staff, I am

Sincerely,

Francis J. Braceland, M.D."

I cherish that letter, and a deep gratitude wells up within me at the kindness of people: the ever-aiding votes of the most distant and anonymous listener, the encouragement of the awards, the inspiration of such earnest men as Dr. Braceland and Dr. Edgren.

Above all, I cherish my loved ones for their faith, help, and understanding. All I can say to them, now that it is over, is thank you.

And thank God.

'Tis the Season to Bake

How the fragrance of pre-Christmas baking introduces the holiday mood! Cookie baking and the decorating of string-ups for the Christmas tree can be a fun-project for all the family, and now is the time to plan that festive, charming custom. Here are recipes for molded, rolled, refrigerated, drop, and bar cookie doughs.

BLACK WALNUT MOUNDS

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN.

TO BAKE: 25 MIN.

- 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- ¼ cup sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 egg whites, unbeaten
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 cup (about 4 oz.) black walnuts, coarsely chopped

1. Generously grease cookie sheets.
2. Sift together into a bowl the sugar, flour, baking powder, and salt. Add egg whites and vanilla extract gradually, mixing until smooth after each addition. Stir in the nuts.
3. Drop by half-teaspoonfuls about 2 in. apart onto cookie sheets.
4. Bake at 250°F 25 min. Remove cookies to cooling racks.

About 5 doz. cookies

HOLIDAY STRING-UPS

TO PREPARE: 25 MIN.

TO BAKE: 6-8 MIN.

- 3½ cups sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup butter
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1½ cups sugar
- 2 eggs

1. Sift first three ingredients together.
2. Cream butter and vanilla extract together until butter is softened. Add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy after each addition. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.
3. Mixing only until blended after each addition, add dry ingredients in fourths to creamed mixture. Chill dough thoroughly, about 4 hrs.
4. Remove amount of dough needed for a single rolling and return remainder to refrigerator. On a lightly floured surface, roll dough ¼ in. thick. Cut with a variety of cookie cutters. Transfer to cookie sheets.
5. Bake at 400°F 6 to 8 min. Remove cookies to cooling racks.

About 5 doz. cookies

Chocolate String-Ups

Follow recipe for Holiday String-Ups. Melt 2 sq. (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate over simmering water. Add melted chocolate and 1 cup finely chopped pecans to the dough after the last addition of the dry ingredients.

Note: For Christmas-tree ornaments, before baking make holes in cookies by using 1-in. long sections of paper straws and inserting one section of straw into top end of each cookie. Decorate cookies with Fluffy Frosting, silver shot, red or green sugar, or candies. (See photo.)

FLUFFY FROSTING

TO PREPARE: 20 MIN.

- 1½ cups sugar
- ½ cup water
- 1½ tablespoons light corn sirup
- 2 egg whites
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

1. Combine sugar, water, and corn sirup in a saucepan. Place over low heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring until mixture reaches 240°F (soft ball stage—forms a soft ball in very cold water; flattens when taken from water).
2. Beat egg whites until rounded peaks are formed and egg whites do not slide when bowl is partially inverted. Continue beating egg whites while pouring the hot sirup over them in a steady thin stream. After all the sirup is added, continue beating until frosting is very thick and forms rounded peaks (holds shape). Fold in the vanilla extract. This will stay soft for about an hour. If it begins to harden, reheat in saucepan.

About 2¼ cups

Holiday String-Ups, Fluffy Frosting, and steaming hot cocoa served in "winkin' Santa" mugs to keep the decorators happy.

Can't fail! No beating! No soft-ball test, no candy thermometer needed! Ordinary milk can't do it—it takes Carnation, the evaporated milk you can use like cream. Carnation's own method of evaporation slowly removes only water, at low temperature. This gives Carnation the consistency of golden country cream, with ½ the fat calories—and at ½ the cost of cream!

CARNATION "CAN'T FAIL" 5-MINUTE FUDGE

Mix ¾ cup undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK, 1½ cups sugar, ½ teaspoon salt in saucepan over low heat. Heat to boiling; cook 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Add 1½ cups (16 medium) diced marshmallows, 1½ cups BAKER'S CHOCOLATE CHIPS or CARMEL CHIPS, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped nuts. Stir 1-2 minutes (until marshmallows melt). Pour into buttered 9-inch square pan. Cool; cut in squares.

What you may not know about your baby's eyes

Gift ideas with
Heinz screw-cap jars

What chance
you'll have twins?

If your baby's eyes cross very often after he's six months old, don't assume he'll outgrow it; tell your doctor. Eye muscle control develops at different ages, but most six-month-olds can focus those bright eyes straight at you most of the time. It's nice to know that certain visual difficulties can be corrected quite easily—with prompt attention—in baby's earliest years.

• Nature normally cleans your little one's eyes without help, but you can safely clean eyelid corners. Use moist cotton, wiping outward from the inside corner. Remember that baby's eyes need practice—plenty of new and interesting things to look at. But when you hang "look toys" over a baby's crib, keep them at arm's length from his eyes.

• One good turn deserves another! When baby masters the roll-over trick, he can flip over faster than you can catch him. Your big bed isn't safe, but baby considers his crib too confining. So now's when he'll happily spend time in his play pen.

• How does it happen that Heinz develops so many "Firsts" in baby foods? Exclusive flavors such as Junior Egg Noodles and Beef; Spaghetti, Tomato Sauce and Meat; Vegetables and Ham; Vegetables, Egg Noodles and Chicken (or Turkey)? One reason is the expert way Heinz scientists and chefs work together in Heinz magnificent new Research Center to create tasty and nutritious recipes for your baby. Using ultramodern facilities, they develop the kind of food your baby loves, with quality you can trust.

• What else are Heinz Baby Foods' new screw-cap jars good for—aside from being such a cinch to open and reseal? "They're great," writes a Connecticut mother, "to fill with Christmas gift preserves, little one-meal servings of homemade jams and marmalades. Hooray for Heinz for bringing screw-cap jars to baby foods!" Heinz was first—now has most baby foods in screw-cap jars.

• Safety is your first concern for baby's first Christmas tree (and all those to follow!). Make sure you get a fireproofed tree and a sturdy non-tip stand. See that lights and electric sockets are in good condition. Keep breakable ornaments off low branches—where baby might be tempted to taste them!

• Teach your baby to like many vegetables—it's so easy to get in a rut and serve the same few favorites. Here's a partial list of delicious Heinz Strained Vegetables—has your baby tried them all? Squash, Creamed Spinach, Creamed Peas, Green Beans, Carrots, Sweet Potatoes, Beets, for example.

• Twins occur once in every 90 pregnancies. Your chance of having twins is greater if you're in your late thirties, if you've already had several children, or if you or your husband have twins in the family. In the United States, about 125 sets of twins are born every day.

Thanks to a Texas mother, these half-pints fill the Milk Bowl with a rich combination of fun and charity

by OREN ARNOLD

PERHAPS the most fascinating football bowl game in America is played not in the Rose, Cotton, or Sugar Bowl, but in a bowl which a young mother organized for youngsters in rural Texas.

Played each December during the past decade, it's called the Milk Bowl game because no player may exceed 14 years in age or 100 pounds in weight. In just 10 years, it has achieved such prestige that many distinguished Americans help sponsor it, and it is nationally broadcast.

The yearly contest matches the best small-fry team in Texas (chosen by elimination) against the best from out-of-state—and teams from as far away as Germany and Japan have petitioned to play. All the proceeds go to a charity for children.

The Milk Bowl originated when Mrs. Elizabeth Weafer and her family were "stuck away off" in Gause, Tex., population 500, because husband Eugene was the new schoolteacher there. She found no outlets for her energetic boys, so she asked her husband to introduce football. He had never coached, nor even played, but Elizabeth bought him a how-to book and marked off a field in a cow pasture. By October that year, 1949, he had put together a ragtag and shoeless team—which had no opponents to play.

Elizabeth wrote a challenge to every school within range, and Bryan, a city of 18,000, condescended to take on the Gause kids as an easy "breather." The scared country boys, who had never even seen a football game before, grimly went out and stunned their city opponents, 24-0!

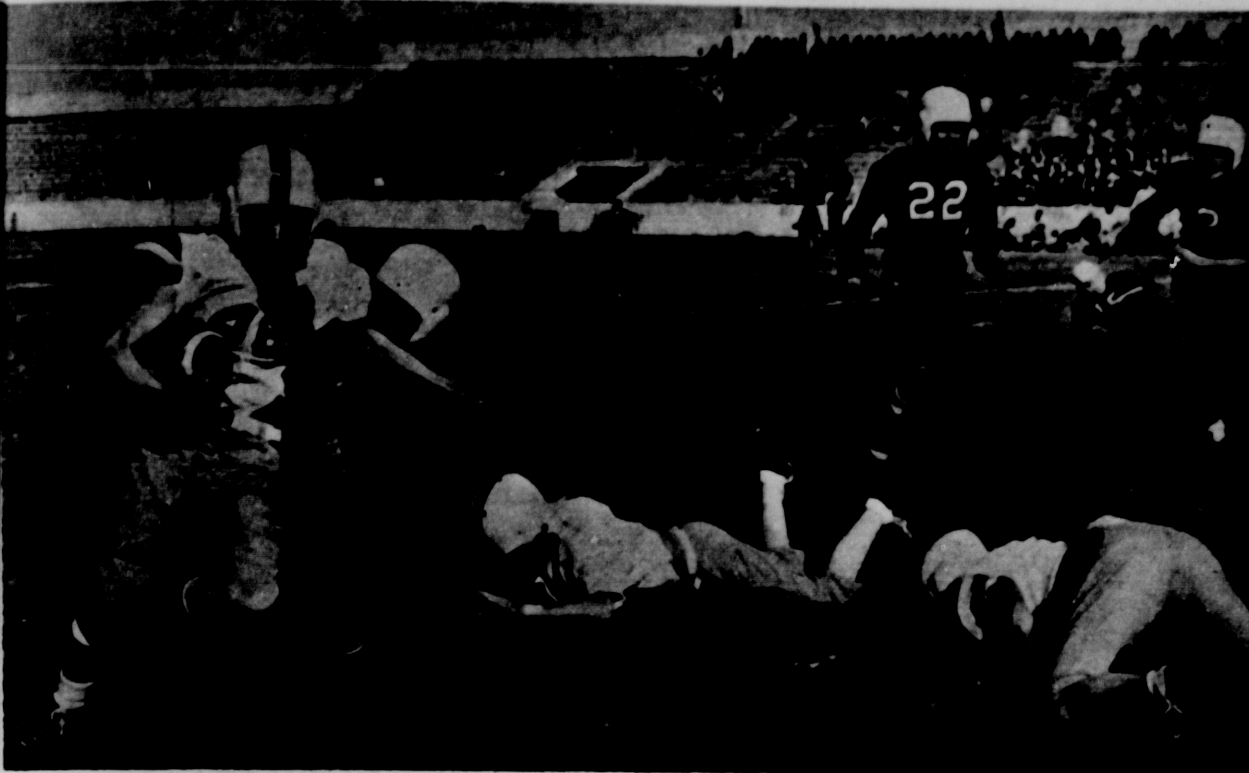

News of the victory aroused all of Texas. The country lads went on to clobber school after school so impressively that by late November they too had shoes to wear. Their best plays were dreamed up by Elizabeth at night: hidden ball tricks any coach would welcome. She herself watched all games from the side lines, usually with her baby on her hip.

AFTER THAT bang-up first season, the idea caught on fast. Elizabeth asked a radio station and two newspapers if they didn't think a Milk Bowl would be a good idea, and they backed her. Other agencies joined and in December, 1949, the first Bowl game was played at Cameron with the proud Gauslings in resplendent new uniforms, shoes and all. They showed a sophisticated confidence characteristic of all-stars when they roared onto the field—and lost the game, 20-7!

No matter. The National Milk Bowl had already caught the nation's fancy. Herbert Hoover wrote, offering help. So did J. Edgar Hoover, Red Grange, multimillionaire Hugh Roy Cullen, hotel magnate Conrad Hilton, comedian George Gobel, and many other national celebrities.

One wealthy supporter was going to bring in the U. S. Marine Band to support his nephew's team in the Bowl, but Liz Weafer heard of it. "Put all that money in the Bowl charity fund for crippled children," she ordered, and shamed him into doing it. At another game, two wealthy fans each bet $1,000. She confronted them and said, "Gambling is sinful and illegal. To keep you mer out of trouble, I'll just confiscate these bills for the crippled kids." They could only chuckle and say, "Yes, ma'am, of course that's the thing to do."

Elizabeth gets no fee for her services, nor does anyone else although the Bowl now requires many hours of work and she spends half her time on it. "I had more fun in the early years of the Bowl," she smiles wistfully. "Especially at Gause."

Back there, she organized the schoolgirls and other kids into a cheering section. A farm boy reported that fact at home, and his father declared: "Well, if she says for you to holler, then you holler! I don't understand football, son, but I do understand hollerin'. It tones up a body and makes him work harder at whatever he's doin', and it helps his friends if he hollers for them, too."

Texas would elect Mrs. Weafer governor if she'd consider it. But she's dedicated to kids, and to her Methodist Church.

Not long ago she was told by Father James Keller, head of the Catholic Christophers: "You are the perfect example of what one sincere person can do."

Elizabeth Weafer talks tackles and team spirit to her sons. What began as amusement for them turned into a famous yearly contest, the Milk Bowl.

How to add $100 or more to the value of your TV set

For an investment of about $50, plus a nominal service charge, you can make the performance of your TV set equal to a brand-new set that would cost you $150 or more. You can, if you make the right choice when you replace its picture tube.

Just make sure the brand you buy has the same brightness and contrast manufacturers specify for their new TV sets. If you insist on a Silver Screen 85, the picture tube your serviceman installs will have the very same performance standard as the tubes Sylvania supplies to 7 out of 10 major TV set manufacturers.

Sylvania has one and only one product quality—the finest. Today's Silver Screen 85 is just about 50% brighter and clearer than a new tube made five years ago. You'll be amazed at the difference this can make in your old TV.

To get your TV off to a flying new start, it's wise to have your serviceman check the small tubes affecting picture brightness, contrast, and size.

We urge you to replace weak tubes with quality Sylvania receiving tubes and save $2.00 by using the coupon below.
